The Daytona 200 has been run to these formulas:

- Formula 750 (1972-1979) / to be confirmed
- Formula 1 (1980-1984)
- Superbike (1985-2004)
- Formula Xtreme (2005-2008)
- Daytona SportBike (2009-2014)
- ASRA SportBike (2015-2016)

The race has counted towards several major championships, including:

- AMA National Championship (1954-1984, 1987-1988)
- AMA Superbike Championship (1985-2004)
- AMA Camel Pro Road Racing Series (1986)
- FIM Formula 750 World Championship (1975-1977)

Daytona International Speedway course layouts as used for the Daytona 200:

- 2.00 miles (1961-1963)
- 3.81 miles (1964-1972)
- 3.84 miles (1973-1975)
- 3.87 miles (1976-1984)
- 3.56 miles (1985-2004)
- 2.95 miles (2005-2007)
- 2.90 miles (2008)
- 3.55 miles (2009)
- 3.56 miles (2010)
- 3.51 miles (2011-2016)

Note that from 1964-1970 qualifying was held on the 2.5-mile oval rather than the 3.81-mile road course used for the actual race / also note that support races may have used different layouts

Support races were also held at nearby locations:

The AFM is a California-based club founded in 1954. In the 1950s and 1960s the AFM had a partnership with the California Sports Car Club, which allowed AFM riders to race their motorcycles at many sports car meetings. The AFM also cooperated with the 500cc Club of America, which promoted Formula 3 automobile racing and was later renamed Formula Racing Association, and the SCCA. Races were held at permanent facilities, street and parking lot courses, and airfield circuits.

22/05/1966: Don Vesco (Triumph) or Ronald Christie (Norton) (open class) / sources contradict

22/05/1966: Ernie Caesar/Reg Pridmore (Triton) (sidecars)

The ACA organised road races through 1974 but seemingly dissolved after that

American Motorcycle Association

In 1970, the AMA sanctioned a meeting billed as the American Motorcycle Grand Prix on the 1.8-mile road course of Pocono International Raceway:

16/08/1970: results not available

After the war, the AMA National Championship was initially decided by a single 25-mile dirt track race at the Illinois State Fairgrounds 1-mile oval in Springfield each August. Here are the winners:

17/08/1946: Chet Dykgraaf (Norton)
17/08/1947: Jimmy Chann (Harley-Davidson)
22/08/1948: Jimmy Chann (Harley-Davidson)
21/08/1949: Jimmy Chann (Harley-Davidson)
20/08/1950: Larry Headrick (Harley-Davidson)
19/08/1951: Bobby Hill (Indian)
17/08/1952: Bobby Hill (Indian)
23/08/1953: Bill Tuman (Indian)

Then from 1954-1988, the AMA National Championship was a unique series that combined road racing with dirt track racing, the latter including one mile, half mile, short track and TT steeplechase events.

During said period the AMA National Championship ran under the following titles:

- Grand National (1954-1974)
- Camel Pro Series (1975-1978, 1983-1988)
- Winston Pro Series (1979-1982)

Below are all road races that were part of the AMA National Championship from 1954-1988. Listed are the date (day/month/year), the circuit, the winner, his machine, and the race distance. The series champion is also included for each year.

In addition, the figures in brackets next to each year indicate the number of road races and dirt track races. For example, 5/13 means there were 5 road races (these are listed) plus 13 dirt track events, for a total of 18 championship rounds that year.

As the road races were always outnumbered by the dirt track events, most National Championship titles were won by dirt track specialists.

The Camel Pro Series, which traditionally combined road racing with dirt track, was split in two separate series in 1986, both with their own champion, not one overall road/dirt champion as before, although the Camel Challenge Cup was awarded to the rider who scored the most points in both disciplines combined.

- Camel Pro Road Racing Series (9 rounds)
- Camel Pro Dirt Track Series (22 rounds)

Below are the races of the Camel Pro Road Racing Series, which was a combination of the AMA Superbike and Formula 1 series. Riders could enter both classes at each race weekend (but not with the same machine), with their best finish in either counting towards the Camel Pro Road Racing Series.

Superbike (9 rounds):

09/03/1986 - Daytona International Speedway: Eddie Lawson (Yamaha) (200 miles)
 18/05/1986 - Sears Point International Raceway: Fred Merkel (Honda) (60 miles)

 10/08/1986 - Road Atlanta: Kork Ballington (Honda) (60 miles)
 AMA Formula 1 Champion: Randy Renfrow

The Camel Pro champions were:

- Camel Pro Road Racing Series: Fred Merkel
- Camel Pro Dirt Track Series: Bubba Shobert
- Camel Challenge Cup: Bubba Shobert

In 1987 and 1988, the Camel Pro Series once again comprised both road races (these are listed below) and dirt track events. There was one overall champion, although road racing (AMA Superbike) and dirt track (AMA Grand National) series, which each crowned a champion as well, ran concurrently.
